

Opinion

by Mick Forgey

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

February 14, 2020

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter, Global Sisters Report and EarthBeat. The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Reaction continues to Pope Francis' apostolic exhortation Querida Amazonia, his response to the Amazon synod.

- From Mauricio López Oropeza, executive secretary of the Pan-Amazon Church Network: Beloved Amazonia: a love letter for the conversion of hearts.
- From Meghan Clark, moral theology professor at St. John's University: 'Querida Amazonia' provides reflection on ecological sin.

Pope shares with U.S. bishops his frustration with reaction to Amazon text:

U.S. bishops spent time with Pope Francis yesterday, and they conveyed some of his comments about exhortation reactions that caught his eye.

Excommunicated hermits — and their cats — finally find peace:

Three hermits have been on "an odyssey like no other," seeking isolation from what they perceived as the world's sins, to be closer to God. Their journey culminated in excommunication.

In bone-chilling numbers, femicides in Mexico are a national emergency:

"On average, 10 women are murdered every day in Mexico. ... Official figures show that 3,142 women and girls were killed in 2019, and only 726 of those cases are being investigated as femicides. But women's rights activists say that number is way too low."

Your thoughts on author and speaker Matthew Kelly: NCR readers respond to national correspondent Heidi Schlumpf's three-part series. From one reader: "'Feed my lambs, feed my sheep' and it's OK to get rich doing it?"

Advertisement

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.