

Opinion

(NCR photo/Teresa Malcolm)

by Teresa Malcolm

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

April 17, 2020

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter, Global Sisters Report and EarthBeat. The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Is it OK to make your confession by Zoom? Pandemic revives conversation about reconciling from afar, with questions about technology and surveillance that the church hasn't had to consider in the past. Joshua McElwee talks to some theologians about the possibilities and pitfalls of taking this sacrament digital.

The pandemic has intensified a long-standing dispute between the oil-refining industry and agriculture, as both press the government for relief from the economic fallout: Coronavirus spurs new clash between Big Oil and Big Corn over US biofuels.

Rampant anxiety about the coronavirus has given rise to the sort of existential questions that participants in the Nuns and Nones movement have been considering together for four years. The pandemic magnifies prescient reflections of Nuns and Nones dialogue, and the sisters and millennial seekers' conversations about such themes as contemplation, community and social justice have grounded them in this time.

Amid a simmering dispute between parishioners and a pastor promoting the Latin Mass at a North Carolina parish, a parishioner alleges Easter Mass violated state, diocesan social distancing orders that ban gatherings of more than 10 people.

This week's Letters to the Editor respond to NCR's recent editorial on the hierarchy's single-issue political focus and the current presidential administration. Read some readers' thoughts on the reckoning of Catholics and Trump.

Bernie Sanders has ended his presidential campaign, but it left an impact on columnist Colman McCarthy, who says: Bernie Sanders inspires me to be better

Advertisement

*Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter?
Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy
Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.*