

News

The hurry of the holidays can leave us less mindful of how our actions impact the earth. (Brenna Davis)

by Brenna Davis

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

December 1, 2020

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Editor's Note: Welcome to Simple Advent, Abundant Life. These daily Advent reflections will explore connections between simple living and abundant life on the earth. They are inspired by the Advent Simplicity Challenge at the Ignatian Solidarity Network. Sign up here to receive the reflections each day in your inbox.

First week of Advent theme—Time

Day 3: Tuesday, Dec. 1

REFLECT

Ultimately, I believe that slowness is an act of resistance, not because slowness is a good in itself but because of all that it makes room for, the things that don't get measured and can't be bought.

- Rebecca Solnit

When thinking about caring for the earth and simple living, reflecting on time and how we live our days might seem out of place; however, the weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas can become some of the busiest and most stressful of the year.

Additionally, when we feel hurried, we are often less likely to be mindful of our concern for the earth and all of creation. We consume more fossil fuels as we speed to get to the next place, use disposable items to save time and do not mindfully consider how people and the planet were treated to produce the items that we buy.

Slowness provides open space and time for the Spirit to move in and for us to really encounter the people and places where we live, the meaningful parts of our lives that cannot be bought.

What is one area of your life where you can intentionally slow down to make room for what matters this Advent?

ACT

Do one thing slowly today. Drink a cup of tea or coffee, wash the dishes, go for a walk. Whatever you do, avoid multitasking and remain present in the moment. Notice how you feel when you do this.

View Day 3 of the Advent Simplicity Calendar for an opportunity to practice mindfulness and for suggestions on how to slow down.

---

Simple Advent, Abundant Life

reflect | act

Sign up to receive daily emails for this Advent reflection series.

Advertisement

This story appears in the Simple Advent Abundant Life feature series. View the full series.